

Our Message for This Moment

By ACLU Maryland Staff

In barely one year of the second Trump administration, our country has borne witness to the unimagined threats to our democracy. Project 2025 was the roadmap the ACLU, along with our partners, collaborators, and allies warned of, and it is now unfolding in real time.

Over the past several months, these forces have executed mass deportations; thwarting democracy by separating families; criminalizing peaceful protests; diminishing voting rights; silencing opposition; and undermining constitutional checks and balances. But the truth is, enough was enough a year ago. In response, the ACLU has filed over 200 legal challenges against the Trump administration in 2025, with the majority resulting in delaying, disrupting, and derailing Trump's unconstitutional initiatives.

Among these are renewed attacks on the federal Voting Rights Act. For decades, voters have faced unfair districts and at-large elections that dilute the voting power of Black voters and other voters of color. Legislation to pass and instill the Maryland Voting Rights Act would ensure all Maryland voters can participate freely and fairly in the state's democratic process.

Progress is also underway at the local level. In Wicomico County, after months of organizing and advocacy, the County Executive agreed to hold off on any 287(g) agreements with Immigrations and Customs Enforcement for the time being. This decision strengthens public safety and sets a precedent for a state-wide ban on 287(g) to be introduced in the 2026 Maryland General Assembly. During a rally in Frederick County, Campaign Strategist Sebastian Brown, said this, "Not on our watch."

In Baltimore County, after the County Council secretly signed a deal with ICE without any public notice, the ACLU of Maryland filed several Public Information Act requests regarding the Memorandum of Understanding with the Department of Homeland Security. As community members demanded answers during a protest at the Baltimore County Circuit Court, Senior Staff Attorney David Rocah reminded the crowd, "Our immigrant neighbors make this county stronger, safer, more vibrant, and more just. We refuse to let fear, secrecy, and federal bullying undermine our values."

The ACLU of Maryland remains committed to uplifting each person's humanity and making that truth real for everyone. Expanding voting rights and banning local agreements with ICE will continue to be top priorities for the 2026 Legislative Session. Along with protection of civil liberties and civil rights, the ACLU will remain committed to achieving justice— and we will not stop until every person in Maryland can live freely, safely, and equally under the law.

DEAR FRIENDS OF CIVIL LIBERTIES

The First Amendment is under fire, and the moment demands that we rise together to defend it.

Over the past few months, we've seen this administration test the limits of free speech, press, and protest in ways that strike at the heart of democracy itself. Federal agencies have been ordered to strip funding from schools and universities that uphold diversity and inclusion; journalists have been banned from White House and Pentagon briefings unless they agree to report only what the administration dictates; and National Guard troops have been deployed in American cities to silence peaceful demonstrations.

These acts are not about safety or efficiency. They are designed to stoke fear in individuals and communities as well as control access to truth, to protest, and to free thought.

The stories and updates in this issue reflect the many ways the ACLU of Maryland is confronting these challenges head-on. Our legal team is challenging unconstitutional restrictions on the freedom to think, speak, protest, and advocate for rights and principles on which the government may disagree. We are partnering with educators and students to protect academic freedom. And we are standing alongside community organizers to ensure that peaceful protest remains protected, not punished. This is the work of defending democracy. It requires courage, vigilance, and an unwavering belief in the power of truth.

Every lawsuit we file, every case we win, every Marylander we empower is part of a larger promise—that the rights guaranteed by the Constitution are not negotiable. No administration, no political agenda, and no weaponized system of government can erase that truth.

Thank you for standing with us in this critical moment. Your support fuels our resolve and strengthens our ability to defend what is most essential: freedom itself.

With gratitude and solidarity,

Corey Stottlemeyer

CENSORSHIP, DISCRIMINATION, AND LEGAL VIOLATIONS IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Somerset parents and organizations have raised serious concerns with the County Board of Education after nearly a year of limited transparency and accountability. Since the start of 2025, the now all-white board has advanced a harmful political agenda: censoring books that affirm Black and LGBTQIA+ experiences, blocking approval of a state-endorsed English Language Arts curriculum, holding secret meetings, firing the Black Superintendent of Schools, removing its own in-person meetings to bar public comment, and making threats toward parents and educators.

We have sent several letters and a Maryland Public Information Act request to the school board on these egregious actions that have fractured public trust and placed student rights and funding at risk. The people of Somerset County deserve better than this, and we intend to ensure that the school board honors the freedom to learn so that every student can thrive in a school system that nurtures curiosity, inclusion, and opportunity.

CHALLENGING FEDERAL CENSORSHIP IN OUR SCHOOLS

We joined PEN America in filing a brief supporting the American Federation of Teachers' lawsuit challenging a dangerous U.S. Department of Education directive that threatens federal investigations against schools that discuss race, diversity, or inclusion. Framed as anti-discrimination guidance, the policy functions as a gag order pressuring educators to erase accurate lessons on U.S. history, racism, and LGBTQ+ identities from the classroom.

In our brief, we argued that this censorship is part of a broader national campaign to restrict what students can read, learn, and discuss. It silences truth-telling and punishes those who speak up. In April 2025, a federal judge in Maryland issued a preliminary ruling blocking the policy. In August, the court struck down the policy in a final ruling, marking a critical win for academic freedom and the right to learn. The government is expected to appeal.

"NOT ON OUR WATCH"

OUR PUSH FOR A FULL STATEWIDE BAN ON ICE 287(G) AGREEMENTS

Across Maryland, every day more than 10 immigrant families are separated, their children are left without parents. Maryland's participation in 287(g) agreements is contributing to this harm. 287(g) is a voluntary agreement between ICE and localities to deputize local law enforcement to act as ICE agents after minimal training. As opposed to other forms of local cooperation with ICE, 287(g) turns local jails and police into extensions of ICE – all at local taxpayers' expense. Last year, we were successful in passing the Sensitive Locations Act which requires the Attorney General to develop policy guidelines for locations like public schools, public libraries, courthouses, facilities operated by the Comptroller, state-funded healthcare and mental health facilities, and shelter care, that provide essential state-funded services to the public and prohibits federal immigration law enforcement from entering the location unless it presents a valid warrant issued by a federal or state court. But this is not enough.

After months of mobilizing in Wicomico County, we saw the impact that community action can have: the county executive announced that they will not move forward with entering a 287(g) agreement with ICE, for now. While this is a victory, we must ensure there is a full statewide ban on all 287(g) partnerships across Maryland so that our local law enforcement officers cannot continue to work with ICE to harm and intimidate our communities. This session, along with our coalition partners, we will advocate for a full ban because our communities deserve real public safety, not fear.

LANGUAGE ACCESS PASSED, NOW IT'S TIME TO SECURE THE REST OF THE MDVRA

Last session, in line with the landmark Maryland Voting Rights Act, we worked with our partners to win new language access requirements that ensure more voters can understand and fully access the voting process. The new provisions expand on existing federal laws requiring translation of election materials, lowering the population threshold required for language assistant coverage and increasing the number of languages covered. However, there remain critical parts of the MDVRA that must pass this session, including protections against vote dilution, voter suppression, and voter intimidation. Maryland must make fair voting access and voter protection a reality. These additions will be a top priority for the 2026 legislative session as we look to pass the rest of the MDVRA before the federal Voting Rights Act is further diminished.
