Build Schools. Build Neighborhoods.

ACLU and other community groups successfully launch campaign to modernize every public school building in Baltimore City

Over 50 education and community advocates gathered at Booker T. Washington Middle School for the Arts on August 18th to launch the campaign to Transform Baltimore: Build Schools, Build Neighborhoods. All shared their support for new and modern schools in every Baltimore City neighborhood.

Please visit the brand new campaign website: www.transformbaltimore.org to learn about the state of our schools, funding options, and how to get involved with the campaign.

Transform Baltimore has also begun its bi-weekly video series, Stories of Transformation, profiling schools that have already benefited from renovation projects. The first video features Benjamin Franklin High School at Masonville Cove. Subscribe to Transform Baltimore's YouTube channel for the latest videos!

Join BUILD at their Mayoral Candidate Accountability Session!

Thursday, August 25, 2011 at 6:30pm

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church
1501 East Oliver Street,
Baltimore, MD 21213

Baltimore Education Coalition member, BUILD, will hold its Democratic Mayoral Candidate Accountability Session, from 6:30-8:30. Joseph "Jody" Landers, Otis Rolley, State Sen. Catherine Pugh and Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake have confirmed their attendance.

Please join BUILD in this discussion to "Raise our Youth, Raise our City." BUILD will be asking candidates questions surrounding their agenda: school construction, community centers, youth employment, after-school programs, and downtown vs. uptown development.
